

HOLKE IS PICKED TO STAR

McGraw Expects Young First Sacker to Be Wonder of 1917 Campaign.

REPLACED MERKLE AT INITIAL SACK

By JACK VEBECK

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Run your eyes over the first batting order of the National league for 1917 and you will discover the name of a young man who is very likely to make all candidates for 1917 honors step lively.

The youth in question is "Hawk" Holke, of the Giants.

The records show that Holke played in about 35 full games. They also show that he was a star with the stick and a glutton for absorbing chances. His last year's other player backed off the ball in 25 games, and the figures indicate that he has the makings of a star.

McGraw is enthusiastic over Holke, and whenever the Little Napoleon of baseball enters there is a reason.

Several years ago when Holke went to Madison with the Giants for spring training he did not look so very good at the bat. He was then a righthanded hitter, and McGraw owned that he was an awful green one. Later he was sent to Rochester under John Gansel, and after that he had tried to bat from the left side of the plate. Gansel had him batting righthanded again. The fall of 1915 found Holke among the leaders in the draft, but McGraw kept his eye on him.

Last year Holke again took up the torch and hitting and late in the season he was called in by the Giants and McGraw sent Fred Merkle to the Dodgers. Holke was hitting left-handed, but he batted from a crouching position, which is considered bad form.

McGraw advised Holke to stand up straight and try swinging at "em without the crouch. Holke, always a willing youngster, took McGraw's advice, and the result was that he started hammering the old ball on the nose. His fielding was greatly improved and he showed up well as an all-around player. He played a big share in helping the Giants win 25 straight games for a new world's record, and he is coming back again in the spring to help them fight for a championship.

Had Charles Zeke Danberry and other crack first sackers, the National league will have to travel at a fast pace if Holke keeps on his stride. He's a 42 centimeter ball player, if we are to believe in McGraw's judgment.

To Joe Tinker.

Goodby, Tinker! Luck to you, Joe! We're sorry you gotta go. You're a league day's man now, but you're a star in one good club—a regular boner of a Cub. It's tough, old Joe, you got the can, and now must be an altar; but, Joe, that's just the human breed—for all men cheer when you succeed, and all men pan you when you fail. Goodby, old Cub, ta-ta, old Whale!

MOHA Has Cauliflower Ear

And They Say It's a Darby

BOE MOHA, better known to the fight fans throughout the country as the Milwaukee Cave-man, sports one of the finest cauliflower ears of any boxer in the profession.

Bob has a great deal of trouble explaining to people how he got the cauliflower ear.

Everyone takes it for granted that it was put on Bob during one of his many battles in the ring, but the fact is, it happened long ago in an accidental manner. Bob was fooling around the gymnasium and was invited by the athletic director, Tommy Larkins, to wrestle a bit on the mat.

Bob was accommodating and began to roll around the mat with Larkins. In doing a head spin he shot off the mat and struck the hard floor on his head, the result being the breaking of one of the cartilage plates.

Instead of having it attended to at once, he permitted it to go unattended and it was not long before Robert sported one of the finest cauliflower ears ever gazed upon.

He does not intend to fool with it while he is fighting, but when he is through with the ring, Bob intends to consult a surgeon and have the cauliflower removed, a la Battling Selson.

SPEED BOATS ARE HOT IN BIG DEMAND

The annual motorboat show, to be held in New York at the Grand Central Palace, Jan. 27 to Feb. 2, is expected to attract widespread interest this year.

Last year the fair was a V-type motor of high speed, but this year the yachtsmen are leaning toward moderate speed and stying qualities in their boats.

which will withstand all sorts of weather. Many new models, especially designed for coast patrol duty, will be shown this year.

FLEMISH COAST FOR GERMANY?

German Reichstag Member Says Germany Must Protect Her Shipping.

London, Eng., Jan. 10.—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German national liberal deputy, in speech at Hanover on Sunday, declared Germany must emerge from the war in possession of the Flemish coast, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the Times.

Dr. Stresemann said that Germany, although the second greatest economic power in the world and possessing the second strongest merchant fleet, had not a single naval supporting point for her defense in this war time.

"The war has annihilated our world trade," he is quoted as saying. "We have lost our colonies and our cruiser squadron is lost. If, therefore, the war ended without something of our former situation altered the consequences for us would be the collapse of our naval power because the German merchant fleet would not again risk securing world commerce. If a peace is declared without Germany possessing the Flemish coast, England is the winner and we are the loser side. A neutral Belgium is an historical impossibility after this war."

Dr. Stresemann said he looked for a German peace, not one under the protection of a world peace alliance.

Dr. Stresemann had emphasis on the increasing importance of submarine warfare. He said their full employment would raise the monthly toll of tonnage from half a million to 1,000,000 tons. This, he said, would not only strike England in her economic nerves but would mean famine for the English population.
